

Event Services

Host your live online events in the easiest and most cost-effective way

With Kinly Event Services companies can host Town Hall meetings, or multi-day training events, showcase new products and solutions, or simply share company messages in a cost effective and simple way. Kinly Event Services can also ensure that your online events are branded the way you want them – from logos and look and feel, to incorporating specific messaging. This means you don't miss an important opportunity to re-inforce your brand and your values.

Easy to present and participate

With Kinly Event Services a presenter, or multiple presenters, can host an event from a range of devices – whether it is a traditional video conferencing endpoint, or a laptop or tablet using Microsoft Skype for Business, Microsoft Teams, Google Hangout, Cisco Webex or even a web browser. On top of this, all endpoints connect to a CloudRoom over Kinly's global QoS network. This means attendees only need a standard web browsers to view the event, making it easy for you to broadcast your event to a wide audience.

Engage your participants

By nature, live video events allow participants to engage as if they are in the same room, as opposed to streaming which just offers one-way communication. To help boost audience engagement we support chat functionality and make it easy for you to create polls on the fly with our online “wizard”.

Optimize user experience

Including Kinly Cloud dedicated stream nodes in high-density office locations or in areas where international Internet access is expensive, ensures you can always provide a high-quality experience for your attendees.

Record and manage your content

Recording your online events and training sessions can help to increase Return on Investment. Kinly Event Services can not only record your events for you, but also help you manage and distribute them afterwards. With Kinly Customer Success Services, these recorded sessions can even be used as part of an online education program.

Reduce your costs

Kinly Event Services is a specialized CloudRoom with added functionality and service options under the Kinly CloudRoom umbrella. Kinly Event Services enables companies to host their events online and present to employees, customers or partners using their existing video conferencing solutions. The system is easy to use and removes the need to hire external conference facilities or deploy expensive video conferencing bridges. It also helps reduce travel costs.
